SafePlace is a dual domestic violence and sexual assault service agency serving survivors of all genders and their families in Thurston County. Consistently striving to put an end to sexual and domestic violence through crisis intervention and education, SafePlace works as an advocate for personal and societal change. With a board of directors, staff, and volunteers operating the agency, SafePlace is able to sustain our purpose of empowering survivors to make decisions about their lives through means of support services, resources, and readily available information because of donations from community members like you - thank you!
